WHO WE ARE

EVENTING EXPLAINED

Running over four days of competition, Bramham International Horse Trials is one of the country's finest equestrian events. Eventing is a test of athleticism, stamina and precision; the variation in discipline and unpredictable nature of the sport make for superb viewing for both the equestrian enthusiast, and the untrained eye. Britain leads the way in the sport of eventing with many of the world's very best riders being British nationals. The UK is home to many international riders who take advantage of the superb training facilities and events on offer. Bramham is referred to as the 'hardest 4* in the world', resulting in attracting the top athletes hoping to take on the Bramham terrain and come out on top. Eventing is made up of three phases, dressage, cross-country and show jumping.

PHASE 1: DRESSAGE – THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

A test of supreme control and technical excellence during which a set routine of moves are performed – both horse and rider must be highly trained and extremely fit. Dressage is where horses and their riders perform a test in a rectangular arena while being judged against set criteria. Around the arena there are markers, defined by a letter, which give the riders points to perform the movements within the test.

PHASE 2: CROSS COUNTRY – SATURDAY

Cross-country is where riders are required to jump over 30 to 40 obstacles within a fixed time. Riders incur penalties for exceeding the allocated time, or if a horse refuses to clear an obstacle. ... The sport tests the speed, endurance and jumping ability of the horse. Horse and rider tackle up to 36 obstacles over what can be a four mile-long course. Technical perfection, peak condition and diverse skills are required for the sport's most exciting phase.

PHASE 1: SHOW JUMPING – SUNDAY

After the physical demands of cross country day, horses and riders must then demonstrate accuracy and agility in the jumping test by completing a course of show jumps. Penalties are picked up by knocking down the balanced fences, refusing to jump a fence or not completing the course within the optimum time. The competitors jump in reverse order, so the leader after the cross country is the last to jump, giving a nail-biting finish to the event. A lot of competitions are lost or won on the final day.
